Chicago.—State's Attorney Crowe announced today, as attorneys began their battle in behalf of Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, confessed kidnapers and slayers of 14-year-old Robert Franks, that he would seek two grand jury indictments against them tomorrow.

Indictments charging kidnapping

The state's attorney's announcement came at the moment that petitions for writs of habeas corpus were presented to Chief Justice Cady of the criminal court by counsel employed by the millionaire fathers of Leopold and Loeb. The court made the writs returnable

The legal battle into which the millions—estimated as high as $25,000,000—of the Leopolds and the Lebes will be thrown in an effort to gain the bodies from the savans, intended merely to permit legal counsel to consult with them. The attorneys say they do not expect to free them.

the hearing on the writ until June 6 and ordered the boys sent to jail without bond, placing them in the custody of the sheriff as sought by the defense attorneys.

Leopold was unbrokeu and apparently still unaffected by the tragedy.

Says New Method Heals Rupture

Kansas City Doctor's Discovery Makes Truss or Operation Unnecessary

A new discovery which experts agree, has no equal for curative effects in all rupture cases, is the latest accomplishment of Dr. Andrews, well known hernia specialist of Kansas City, Mo. The extraordinary success of this new method proves that it holds and heals a rupture. It weighs only a few ounces. Has no hard gouging pads, no elastic belt, no leg straps, no steel bands, and is as comfortable as a light garment. It has enabled hundreds of persons to throw away rupture trusses and declare their rupture absolutely healed. Many of these had serious double ruptures, from which they had suffered for years. It is Dr. Andrews' ambition to have every ruptured person enjoy the quick relief, comfort and healing power of his discovery, and he will send it on free trial to any reader of the Gazette who writes him. He wants one person in each neighborhood to whom he can refer. If you wish to be rid of rupture for good, without an operation, take advantage of the doctor's free offer. Write him today.

CANNED MILK MEN IN ASSOCIATION

National Organization of Evaporated Milk Industries Formed in Chicago.

Representatives of almost all of the manufacturers of milk products in America met in Chicago recently and organized the Evaporated Milk Association.

L. H. Hardenbergh of the Carnation Milk Association was elected chairman. C. T. Lee, vice chairman, E. G. Annell, treasurer, with W. T. Nardin, C. S. Parsons, H. C. Carr and J. E. King as members of the executive committee.

The association will inaugurate a campaign of education among consumers featuring evaporated milk and the distributing of a billion quarts of milk each year in tin cans. It has taken more than 25 years of marketing effort to develop this method of selling milk to its high state. Condensed milk has made possible the sale of fresh milk in all districts and especially where fluid milk cannot be obtained easily.

JUNIORS ARE KEEN FOR MADISON TRIP

Madison—Badger club girls are looking eagerly forward to the week they are to spend at the College of Agriculture here, June 20 to 27.

"Wherever I go the girls show enthusiasm about their trip to Madison," says Miss Elizabeth Sallier, assistant state club leader in charge of the girls' part of the work. Miss Slater has been working with the county superintendents of schools and reports they have all promised active co-operation in the project.

While here the girls will have an opportunity to see many of the attractions of the capital city, such as the Capitol, the State Library and Museum, university farm, and forest products laboratory. Two of the mornings will be spent in class-room work, and the girls will have their sleeping quarters in the cheerful, airy playground of the Wisconsin high school.

Scholarships given by banks, business men, schools, community clubs, parent-teacher associations, manufacturing concerns, and private citizens cover the expenses of the boys and girls on this trip. These scholarships are offered for the best club work done in the different projects. The Milwaukee Association of Commerce offers six state-wide scholarships of $5 each, and Brown, Kenosha, Racine, and Washington counties offer five scholarships each in county-wide contests.

CLASS DAY AT EDGERTON

Edgerton—Annual class day exercises of the senior class of the high school will be held in the school auditorium at 8 p. m. Tuesday night. On Thursday night, at 8, commencement exercises and presentation of diplomas will be held in the school auditorium. The program has been arranged as follows: Invocation, the Rev. R. J. Bailey; address of welcome by Leona Hysand; presentation of diplomas, Greta Wille; vocal solo by Kathryn Geier; address, E. O. H. superintendent of schools; music, girls' club; farewell address, Philip Owens; presentation of diplomas, Sept. P. J. Holt; class song.

SOME DETOURS ON BADGER HIGHWAYS

Madison—Little change in road conditions of state highways noted in this week's state highway department road report. A new detour is shown in Dane county at Middleton at the junction of highways 12 and 41. A detour at Mt. Mansfield, on Highway 19, still exists in good condition. Highway 49 in Fond du Lac county is being worked and 67 in Dodge county, causing some detours.

SWIMMING CLASSES MAKE GOOD PROGRESS

Several of those taking the swimming course under the auspices of the community department of the Y. M. C. A. have already learned and excellent progress is being made by the remainder of the classes. One hundred and two are now enrolled. Instructors, E. E. Bergman and John H. Smith, are insisting on regular attendance, as it has been found that satisfactory results can be obtained only in that way. These classes will be continued for several days, until all have learned to swim the required 50 feet and to execute a plain dive, when certificates will be awarded. A special class for delinquents may be started later.

Cannot Jail Violators of Traffic Ordinances

Madison—A county has no power to impose punishment by imprisonment for violation of ordinances regulating highway traffic. Assistant Attorney General Bump held today in an opinion to James Kirwin, district attorney at Clinton. A county may impose forfeiture penalty, however, and such penalty is not void because referred to as a fine, the ruling further stated. The defendant also may be committed to jail for failure to pay forfeiture judgment.

GEFFS TO RUN FOR DISTRICT ATTORNEY

Young Janesville Lawyer Announces Candidacy for Post Held by Dunwiddie.

George S. Geffs, senior partner in the law firm of Geffs & Fox, Janesville, Monday announced his candidacy for the republican nomination for district attorney of Rock county at the primary election Sept. 2. He opposes the incumbent for the past 15 years, Stanley G. Dunwiddie, Janesville, who it is expected will seek an eighth term as district attorney.

In making his announcement, Mr. Geffs indicated that his platform is one of strict enforcement of the law without partiality. Mr. Geffs is one of the younger lawyers of Janesville, a world war veteran, and has built up a large clientele in his four years' practice here.

He is 30 years old, married, and lives at 1225 Ruger avenue.

Was at Camp Grant

Mr. Geffs is a native of Casey, Clark county, Ill., received his early education there and later taught school there for five years. He gave up teaching to enter the law school of the University of North Dakota at Grand Forks, which he attended for one and one-half years until the outbreak of the war.

Joining the army, Mr. Geffs was stationed at Camp Grant for one year, as a member of the camp adjutant's detachment. In this capacity he did a large amount of personnel work, assisting in the naturalization of some 7,000 aliens.

Is U. W. Graduate

Upon receiving his army discharge, Mr. Geffs enrolled in the University of Wisconsin law school and graduated from there in 1920. He opened his practice of law in Janesville Sept. 1, 1920, with Arthur M. Fisher, and on Jan. 1, 1923, left Mr. Fisher and entered into partnership with Harry S. Fox.

Mr. Geffs is a republican and a member of the Rock County Bar association. He is also identified with the Twilight club, American Legion, Chamber of Commerce and other organizations. For three years he has been village attorney of Clinton.

Nomination papers for the candidate are being circulated throughout the county.

SECURE NEW NUMBERS

More than 1,500 farmers have joined the Northern Wisconsin Tobacco pool during the last year, officials of the pool announce. During the buying season of the last winter, it is declared, from 15 to 20 applications were received daily.

ADVOCATES POOL.

State wide pooling of Wisconsin dairy products is being advocated by Senator John C. Shumann, Watertown, in a series of speeches in the northern section of the state.

BLAINE SPEAKS AT BELMONT TODAY

Belmont, Wis.—Governor Blaine turned aside from topics of foremost political interest in Wisconsin today and reviewed the beginnings of political history of the state in the main address of the formal transfer of the Old Belmont Capitol to the state conservation commission, even the work of restoring the old capitol building to the state.

The governor eulogized the early political leaders of the state, declaring that their foresight and abilities have had much to do with the success of Wisconsin as a state among states. He also highly commended the Johnson capitol commission, which has had charge of the work of restoring the old capitol building to the state.

A Cleansing Deodorant

Germicidal

Purple Heather Soap is the Soap of Safety. It protects from infections. And it protects from body odors.

It is a pure, odorless toilet soap—made by Bauer & Black from the purest ingredients.

It is a general cleansing deodorant—completely destroying all body odors, particularly the odor of perspiration.

The entire surface of the human body excretes perspiration. Perspiration is odorless when first excreted. The unpleasant odor comes from a germ infection.

This germ infection causes a condition known as "Bromidrosis"—which means perspiration with an unpleasant odor.

Absolute cleanliness and the use of a germicide are the only remedies for relieving this most embarrassing condition.

Purple Heather Soap combines these remedies in a safe and efficient manner.

It cleanses with a luxuriant lather. It kills disease and dirt germs. And it completely destroys all body odors—no matter the cause.

INMAN SCHOOL GETS THE PENNANT

County Honors Won and Town Honor by Newark Center School.

Newark and Porter townships held play days Saturday with an approximate attendance of 500 at each gathering. Two township pennants were awarded at Newark. The pennant for school pupils' events went to Smyth, while Lawvers carried off the adult events pennant. Smyth won second honors in adult events and Inman took third place. Lawvers took second place in adult events and Newark Center, third place.

Winner carried off the pennant at Porter play day. Cookville won the Gazette kite tournament. Newark play day drew the best array of kites that have been entered by the schools of any township. Unfortunately there was not sufficient wind at any time during the day for the altitude race.

However, kites were judged on construction and points awarded for this event and for entries made by each school. Nineteen kites were entered as follows: Inman, 11; Lawvers, 4; Newark Center, 2; Smyth, 1; Grove, 1. First honors were carried off by Inman; second, Newark Center; third, Smyth.

An event of interest was the awarding of the Rock County 1924 Honor pennant to Inman school by the editor of the Gazette. The Times club, this pennant was given for points won in a six months achievement contest. The Good Times club, Newark Center, presented to Newark Center school. It was announced that Lawvers school will also receive a Good Times club achievement pennant.

Good Times club honor pennants were presented to all of the pupils both the Inman and Newark Center school in recognition of individual achievements during the school year. Music was furnished throughout the day by the Luther Valley Band. The program was provided by the Editor of the Gazette. The director of Miss Pearl Possing, had consisted of dances by Girl Reserves and songs by a ladies quartet. Glenn Sommer, John W. A. Mrs. A. H. Crandall, Milton—Mrs. A. H. Crandall died at her home in Milton, Sunday at 3 a. m. Mrs. Crandall had been in poor health for a number of years.

Ellen Augusta Saunders, daughter of Dr. Crandall, was born in Milton, N. Y., Aug. 17, 1845, and was 78 years of age. She was the oldest of a family of six children. When she was seven years of age, she went with her parents to West Hallock, Ill., and 10 years later, at the age of 17, she came to Milton, Wis., and entered Milton academy. While quite young, Miss Saunders showed a talent for music, which was later encouraged and developed by study and teaching. While a student at Milton academy, she was always active in musical circles. She was student of the New England Conservatory of Music at Boston, Mass. On Feb. 15, 1874, Miss Saunders was united in marriage to Albert Rogers Crandall at West Hallock, Ill. Immediately after their marriage they went to Lexington, Ky., where Mr. Crandall held the position of assistant director of the state geological survey, his work taking him all over the state. Twenty years later they moved to Milton, where they lived for five years, and then moved to Alfred, N. Y., where Mr. Crandall taught in the university at that place. In 1902 they again returned to Milton, where they lived since made their home, and where Mr. Crandall taught in Milton college up until a few years ago.

Mrs. Crandall united with the Seventh Day Baptist church at West Hallock, Ill., at the age of thirteen. Her membership was transferred to the Milton Seventh Day Baptist church. She has been an active member of the Women's Missionary board.

Mr. and Mrs. Crandall had four children, one a daughter, dying in infancy. Those surviving: Albert, a son, who died at the age of 10; William, a son, who died at the age of 10; William, a son, who died at the age of 10; William, a son, who died at the age of 10.

BROOKLYN STORE ROBBED OF GOODS

$600 Worth of Merchandise Is Obtained in Early Morning Theft.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Brooklyn—Robbers broke into the Brooklyn Mercantile store here early Monday morning and obtained $600 worth of merchandise. Entrance to the store was gained through a side door, opened with a skeleton key some time after 1 a. m. when the lights in the village were extinguished.

The stolen goods consisted of shoes, ladies' dresses and men's trousers, according to a checkup made by Holly Peterson, one of the proprietors, and Ted Every, when they went to the store Monday morning and found the goods gone.

The robbery is similar to that at Milton three weeks ago, when the Holmes general store was entered and $1,500 worth of goods taken. The state has had all agents examine the boys in an effort to forestall a possible second burglary.

When you think of insurance, think of C. P. Beers, Advertiser.

Thomas Godfrey Dies in Elkhorn

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Elkhorn—Thomas Godfrey, 75, retired farmer of Whitewater, and father of District Attorney Alfred Godfrey, Elkhorn, died at his home here at 8 p. m. Sunday, after a 10 days' illness with cardiac asthma.

Mr. Godfrey, the son of the late Thomas and Elizabeth Jano Godfrey, was born at Lima, Center, Rock county, and was married Dec. 21, 1887, to Mary Dickson of the same place. They lived on a farm in Lima Center until 1905, when Mr. Godfrey retired and they moved to Whitewater. Mrs. Godfrey died some time ago and the father has been living here with his son.

He is survived by three children, Alfred L. of Elkhorn; Mrs. Mary Lenoau, Waupun, and Miss Grace Godfrey, Drexel Institute, Philadelphia. Funeral services will be held Wednesday and burial will be in Whitewater.

LEGAL BATTLE IN KIDNAPING CASE GETS UNDER WAY

gregating $16,000 for the apprehension and conviction of the kidnaper and slayers of Robert Franks. The chief himself offered a reward of $1,000 in addition to the rewards of $5,000 each offered by two Chicago papers and by Jacob Franks, father of the slain boy.

LEGAL BATTLE EXPECTED ON DEMAND FOR RELEASE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Chicago—The first skirmish in what is expected to be one of the hardest fought battles in the history of Illinois jurisprudence was set for today when attorneys for Nathan P. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, sons of a prominent Chicago family, and confessed kidnapers and slayers of 14 year old Robert Franks, also a millionaire's son, demanded their release on writs of habeas corpus.

The defense attorneys contend that the youths have not been permitted to discuss their predicament with counsel chosen by the Leopold and Loeb families, and that the state has had all agents examine the boys in an effort to forestall a possible second burglary.

The inquiry into the death of the Franks had also been set for today.

Murdered in Auto
Through confessions made public by Robert R. Crowe, state's attorney, and newspapers it had been established that the child was enticed into an automobile occupied by Leopold and Loeb on the afternoon of Wednesday May 21, struck on the head with a tape-wrapped coil spring, rolled into a heavy blanket with a rag rammed down his throat, and left to die. His body, some five hours later, according to confessions by Leopold and Loeb, was stripped and jammed into a culvert in a wild, isolated spot on the far south side where it accidentally was found.

found the next morning by a passing laborer.
The youthful kidnapers—slayers who claimed they killed the lad through a spirit of adventure as well as for the $10,000 ransom they demanded of Jacob M. Franks, the father—gained a new sensation just tonight—that of being relegated alone to police precinct cells, with special guards to keep them from committing suicide.

Accompanied by detectives and newspaper men, Mr. Crowe took the boys over the route they had traversed with the body of young Franks in their rented automobile and later as they disposed of tell-tale clothing, lap robe, cold chisel, and the typewriter on which Leopold admitted he composed the ransom letter.

Young Leopold, whose father is a manufacturer and lake shipping magnate, is sure, according to Mr. Crowe, and newspaper men who heard the conversation, that money can do anything, and through use of it he hopes to avoid the gallows.

"You know," he said, "we have got a lot of dough. I don't know how many millions. How about fixing this thing up by getting to a few jurors?" Mr. Crowe merely smiled in reply.

Loeb, son of the vice president of Sears Roebuck and company, is less sure, but hopeful.
The young men were permitted to telephone their parents last night. Loeb, talking with his mother, assured her that the money he had committed the murder, insinuating that he could do, and had done such a deed.

Young Leopold assumed a business like conversation. His father is ill. His mother is dead.
"Send me a change of clothes, and isn't it about time you employed an attorney for me?" he was reported as having said. "Yes, I did it. We have got to face it, and make the best of it."

Mrs. Franks, mother of the slain boy, is reported in a serious condition. The lad was a cousin once removed of Leopold, and Mrs. Franks suffered a relapse when she was informed who had killed her boy. She had not recovered from the blow of Robert's death. The police established a zone of quiet around the Franks residence.

This Is a Cheerful Business Report

Reports from the seventh Federal district do not indicate any great slump in business but do, on the other hand, show that efforts to create that impression are from some motive not borne out by collective facts.

It is certain that automobile business has had a recession. The figures are so stupendous in this line of industry that it is impossible to believe that the peak, as established in 1923, can keep up, no matter what the general conditions are otherwise. In April, notwithstanding the situation, the middle west reports gains in the wholesale and retail distribution of cars compared with April 1923 and March 1924. There were a smaller number of cars on hand May 1, 1924 than in 1923. Export of passenger cars has increased nearly 1,000 in April as compared with 1923.

Twice as many grocery firms registered increases as decreases in sales. Wholesale hardware sales were increased. Dry goods and shoes declined. Collections declined slightly, all these comparisons being made both with March 1924 and April 1923.

The Lumbermen Blues can find no solace in the bank report anywhere. Department store sales were increased with two exceptions as reported to the seventh district reserve. Curtailment in employment was slight, though it was seen in nearly all industrial lines. Savings banks deposits increased in Wisconsin, Michigan and Indiana. Wisconsin showed the largest increase. Illinois and Iowa showed a falling off of a very slight percentage.

Sales of agricultural implements increased in April 1924, over April 1923. These facts are interesting since there are some who have spread the gospel of gloom and shrinking business without the figures with which to base statements.

There is a movement on foot to name the next volcano that blows its head off, "Gaston Means."

Twenty Five Million Dollars and Justice

The Chicago Tribune in its report of the confessions of the two modernist, super-intellectual, murderers in the civilization of a great city, calls attention to the fact that the combined fortunes of those involved, amounts to twenty-five million dollars. That may be the reason why the two youths were permitted to sleep in a hotel Saturday night and their silk pajamas were sent for, instead of being locked in a cell.

There are a good many thousand people who do not believe in capital punishment, either as a deterrent or fit climax to crimes. In Illinois the punishment on conviction for murder or kidnapping, is hanging by the neck until dead. In this case it may be the means of removing vermin from the earth. The hyena and the panther are shot to rid society of a menace.

And then, on the other hand, what has the 25 million dollars to do with justice anyhow? Shall that fact serve for the well known and familiar dilatory motions, legal technicalities, quibbling over words and sentences, in indictments, piffing and trifling points of evidence, pleas of insanity and paranoia, expert testimony from differing alienists, depending on which side those experts are testifying as to the pros and cons, and all the other legerdoms to defeat the ends of justice? What difference should it make in the courts of the nation whether the fortune was 25 cents or 25 millions? Why should this fact be summoned at all unless there was the subconscious realization that the fact meant delay and was an index to a long legal battle to save worthless lives?

There is no good citizen who does not regard it necessary that a trial should be held and a fair, impartial trial as well. The crime in Chicago, a city whose lawlessness and disregard for law in any form has become a by-word, is of a character that makes it impossible to properly describe, since the vocabulary is limited to 300,000 words and the builders of the English language had no such criminal act in mind, hence failed to provide for its description in fitting expression.

How much this crime is the result of that system of education which creates abnormal mental development while the soul and the moral sense is atrophied, should be investigated. The mind, tuned up like the E string of a violin, while the moral side is permitted to atrophy and die, is lopsided, irresponsible, a psychological anarchist. The ultimate possibilities of heat, explained Tynndall, was to arrive at a super cold of so low a temperature as almost to be impossible of measurement. The ultimate in educated civilization may arrive at savagery. The super intellectual is the cobra of human society—deadly, without antidote, striking with no warning.

Precedence burns itself out usually in both mental and physiological excesses and perversions. It will be well for some of our universities and seats of learning to examine its faculties and students and find if there are not ways where moral sense can be "better directed." And here it also should not matter whether there are 25 millions of dollars involved or not.

What kind of a fat is it that is a pacifist?

COMMERCIAL AVIATION

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Washington.—The people of the United States pride themselves upon being pioneers in many improvements but it appears that they can not lay claim to supremacy in the field of commercial aviation. Although Americans—the Wright Brothers—were the first to make the heavier-than-air machine a vehicle of flight, and although American aviators have hung up many records and have done well in military aeronautics, American commercial aviation has lagged.

The continent of Europe is criss-crossed with commercial aviation lines while there is scarcely one in the United States. France, England, Germany, Belgium and other European countries issue regular maps showing the lines of flight of commercial airplanes just as in this country railway maps are issued showing the railway lines. For years air lines have been running on schedules as nicely fixed as those of the crack express trains of the United States. Air transportation is an established facility and is used by the European public increasingly every year.

In the United States commercial aviation remains in the experimental stage. There have been lines running from the United States to Cuba, but they have been regarded more as a sort of transportation freak than as a regular public utility. Such is not the case in Europe. There the air lines are a matter of course and a traveler takes his choice between an air line and a rail line much in the same manner as in this country a traveler chooses between a steam line and an electric trolley line.

There is one exception in this country. The Post Office Department has maintained an air service practically ever since the war.

At present, the only air mail route in commission is the transcontinental one from New York to San Francisco. The planes now travel only by day, but about July first a service will be inaugurated which will connect the two cities by a flight made in 25 hours.

The shipment of freight by air in the United States and, indeed, the transportation of passengers on the continent, when it is used, is why the British and some of the other nations of Europe have done, the American air industry seems somewhat backward. In 1923 it is shown that 45,521 passengers were carried by airplane to and from England. British machines carried 33,562 of these or 73 per cent. In the previous year a total of 45,137 passengers was carried.

These figures are merely for passengers carried to and from England. The traffic between continents on the continent would mount into figures several times this one. Despite the troubled situation existing between France and Germany the air lines have been busy carrying traders and other passengers to and from. The figures quoted are for passengers carried over the English Channel.

In addition to the passengers carried between England and the continent some 800 tons of freight also were transported through the air. It is reported that most of the traffic has been light weight goods of high value. While $60 is not a large figure for a year's traffic, when it is considered that each package weighed very little and was worth a good deal, it is seen that the traffic was substantial.

Most of the goods shipped from France to England consist of millinery, dresses, jewelry, and women's finery. Most of the goods shipped from England to France consist of men's clothing. Paris is the world's arbiter of women's fashions and Bond Street, London, the arbiter of fashions for men. Garments do not weigh much in relation to the value of the goods. The London-Paris traffic has consisted of clothing of a fashionable character.

The average load carried in 1923 by British aircraft increased from 810 pounds—three or four passengers and 150 pounds of goods—to 1200 pounds—four or five passengers and 270 pounds of goods. The value of British and foreign merchandise handled by airplane in 1923 was approximately $15,000,000. British commercial airplanes flew 943,000 miles, an increase of 225,000 miles over the 1922 traffic. The reliability of the flights in 1923 was 92.5 per cent compared with 91 in 1922. One hundred per cent equals perfect flight with no accidents and no delays. Despite the fact that longer flights were made and new routes opened in 1923, a better record was made.

In addition to the service to the continent, the British commercial air companies maintain a service within the British Isles. For instance there is a service between London and Manchester, the two greatest British industrial cities. Planes leave twice daily. Regular daily air service is maintained between Manchester in England and Belfast in Ireland. On this latter route four passengers or 1000 pounds of freight may be transported.

Reference is to be held in the near future to take up the question of connecting all principal British cities with a network of air lines. The cities have agreed to subsidize lines which will start service, carrying mails, passengers and freight.

The city of Plymouth is making special efforts in this direction. One of the proposals is to have steamers from the United States deposit all American mail at Plymouth, one of the first ports touched in crossing the Atlantic. From Plymouth, the American mail would be transported by airplane to all other parts of the London-Plymouth line. It is urged that this would result in quicker delivery than for the steamers to carry the mail on to London, Liverpool, Manchester, Southampton or any other British port whence it would be forwarded by rail.

It seems certain that the American business interests soon will develop commercial aviation as highly as it has been developed in Europe and that planes will be buzzing about the United States as they now buzz about Europe.

pleased over so good a man being called for service of this character.

Although residing most of his life in Rock county, yet he lived very close to the Walworth county line, so he may be said to know that county like his own. But that has nothing really to do with it. It would be hard to pick a better candidate than George Hull. He knows from experience the business in which the greater part of the capital and labor of his district is interested. He is a farmer of the dirt and calluses kind. He knows what it is to grub out trees and pull stumps and to make a tillable farm out of a wild place. He has good horse sense. He can talk well when on his feet because he has something to say. He will not be carried off by quick remedies for economic ills. He is as progressive as they make 'em but that does not mean radical or indifferent to established facts.

He knows the value of organization and the way to get good administration because he has been the state head of the most active and well organized group of men and women interested in building a real producing and marketing business out of farming. In the senate he may be relied upon to act independently and without domination of class or special interest.

It may be said here with truth that we regret that we are not still a part of the district in which is Walworth county so that we too might have some representation in the state senate, and the vacancy of the next two years be filled.

There is a difference between people who are clannish and those who are Klannish.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

PATIENT NATURE

Impatient man gives voice to his commands. Impatient action sternly he demands. "I'll have a lawn at once as soft and green," cries he, "as any man's lawn was ever seen." Build it for me. The price I'll gladly pay. Grow me the grass and grow it right away! And Mother Nature hears him but to smile. Who wants a lawn must work and wait awhile.

Patience is Nature. What are days and years? And who is man with all his smiles and tears? And why should he so mildly seek his whim? Shall she be baffled or disturbed by him? "Cut with the scythe and mow the lawn," Men bend their backs to kill each other's fun. But Nature smiles. With every breeze that blows More dandelions in the lawn she sows.

"I want a tree in haste," says man to man. "An oak, right here! 'Tis called for by the plan." "An oak," says Mother Nature, "very good; Just such an oak as grows in yonder wood. I'll grow you one. In forty years or more I'll tell you a lovely shade about your door." Cried man: "In forty years we'll all be dead!" "Then someone else will love the tree," she said.

Time is a precious thing to man, but not To Mother Nature. Happier is her lot.

"Hurry," cries man, "I want a lawn and one! I care not how the swift years come and go. Your time is brief. To mine there is no end. I can afford ten thousand years to spend To gain my purpose. I have naught to fear— Man must depart, but a lawn shall be here!"

HOROSCOPE

TUESDAY, JUNE 2, 1924.

Friendly stars rule today, according to astrology. Neptune, Mars and Saturn are all in benefic aspect. Venus is also in a good position. It is a time most favorable for commerce and the rule should benefit American exporters. There is a favorable sign for all who begin their summer vacation and much increase of foreign travel is forecast.

Vision regarding big constructive enterprises should be clear today, making for success in planning important projects.

There is a place held most favorable for organized industry even when it includes the artistic professions.

The stars declare that in contests between employers and employees great victories will not be gained. There is a danger, but it will be radical changes in established systems.

This should be a lucky day for naval officers, since the stars appear to promise much interest in increasing the number of battleships and providing for protection of both coasts of the country.

The aged should be stimulated by this planetary government which should bring new hopes to those who have been long almost forgotten.

The rule today is supposed to be an auspicious one for the holding of big assemblages of any sort and especially lucky for great gatherings of women.

Politics is subject to a sway making for much adroit activity and many clever plays.

Russian affairs now come under a direction of the stars that is exceedingly threatening to the people and the government.

England will come near to war and will expend large amounts of money on military affairs.

An unusual number of deaths among writers, publishers, educators and lawyers is prognosticated.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of an active, fortunate year. Business and financial affairs should be satisfactory, if no changes are made.

Children born on this day may be unsettled in their ambitions but persevering and able to win success. They are likely to be very talented and to be embarrassed by too many gifts.

Take the man who labors daily, And perchance find the night is his ally. His must be a goodly ration, Consistent with his appetite.

A tick and his journal are soon parted.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author.

TRAINING THE HEART

Athletic training involves hypertrophy or over development of the heart—"enlargement of the heart." The hypertrophy is essential for "good wind." It is on the increased power of the heart, from this over development or hypertrophy, that the getting of "second wind" depends mainly. Athletic endurance, that quality which enables the trained athlete to win his race or even to finish it, is largely a question of this same hypertrophy. Is it safe or wise for the growing lad in his teens to develop cardiac hypertrophy? Should the high school boy be permitted to train for such strenuous strains as football? I do not see how any physician or any well educated physical director can possibly approve of such training for growing boys. The thing which is most indispensable for the training of every boy, in my judgment, is physical training—boxing, short running events, basketball, hockey, baseball, tennis, swimming, vaulting, swimming, gymnastics, apparatus stunts—and daily physical training should be a compulsory part of the common and high school course, under subject matter for promotion. But football is a grown man's game and a dangerous thing for the growing boy to attempt.

A hypertrophied heart is rather more likely to die than a normal heart. Under excessive strain, acute dilation of the heart happens to many athletes in hard, grueling contests, such as a marathon race, and while recovery from the immediate collapse is the rule, the heart which has once suffered acute dilation is likely to remain more or less dilated and weak. This has been the unfortunate history of many athletes.

There is a popular belief that athletes are short lived men. So far as athletes there is no proof and evidence that they die younger than other men, but it seems to me that former great athletes are rather too often found among the dead. The statistics in support of this belief, either, perhaps it just seems so because one is more impressed by the occurrence of such a disease in an athlete.

Speed and utility are to be clearly distinguished from endurance. The boy, or the girl for that matter, should have proper physical training for speed and utility, but endurance and control; that involves no strain on the heart. Endurance requires hypertrophy of the heart. Dogs and horses trained for endurance are famed for it have greatly enlarged hearts. So must the successful football player have an enlarged heart; if he tries to play without it he is likely to suffer dangerous collapse in the game.

If a boy had no growing to do his heart might very well stand the strain of such contests. But most lads in high school are still growing—up or across—and it is a considerable burden to the immature, undeveloped heart, just growing. The enormous strain of such training as is necessary for football is just plain folly and the physical education department of the school ought to veto that precious desire for growing men's sports wherever it manifests itself. The trouble with high school athletics just now is that every fool thinks he can handle the thing and the actual physical education department is calmly ignored.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Mechanical vs. Chemical Shave.
It is hard to choose between one's arms? I have heard that it causes abscesses. Please let me know whether the use of a depilatory powder, then scraping off with dull side of knife is less harmful than shaving.

Answer.—Shaving the ordinary way is always less irritating than chemical shaving. The chemicals are especially made for the purpose. Shaving with the razor probably does increase the liability to infection and abscess in the armpit. The irritation commonly caused by depilatory preparations is much more likely to induce abscess.

Gastric Crick.
My husband, aged 44, has suffered several spells of vomiting lasting four or five days. The doctor called the spells "gastric crick." His blood count is "syphilitic four plus." Please explain gastric crick. (Mrs. H. A. L.)

Answer.—Gastric crick is a sudden spasmodic cramp or pain or vomiting which often occurs in locomotor ataxia. The crick is a sudden relief after hours of days is not clear.

Oil.—It is said that olive oil is just as wholesome and nutritious as the other fats used for cooking.

No.—Toll me something, if you please, about exophthalmic goitre, cause, effect, or how to recover from the same treatment. (R. N. T.)

A.—Exophthalmic goitre and hyperthyroidism cover a great deal of ground. You to discuss disease with your physician only.

AD VALOREM TAXES AGAINST BANKS
(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
Madison—Ad valorem taxes will be assessed against banks and national banks in Wisconsin the same as last year, according to a decision announced today by the state tax commission. The assessments will be made under the law passed by the 1923 legislature, under which banks of the state will be required to pay nearly $1,500,000 more in taxes than under the income tax system. Building and loan associations, bond brokers and similar agencies are held by the commission decision not to be in competition with banks and will not be assessed in the manner similar to banking institutions.

The Four Stragglers

By FRANK L. PACKARD

Copyright, 1923, Geo. H. Doran Co. Serialized by Ledger Syndicate.

CAPTAIN FRANCIS NEWCOMBE, ex-officer in the great war, who breaks into society, but who is really a shadowy figure, noted figure of the underworld, and in the end of various big steals that have set London agog.

RUSSELL, a valet, who had done some big thefts on his own account, and the fourth straggler, who hears the crooks agree to combine after the armistice, and who disappears.

POLLY WICKES, a flower-girl, whom Newcombe has adopted and sent to America to a finishing school, with the idea of insuring social contacts of the best before he leaves England, after executing some big heists.

DORA MARLIN, daughter of an eccentric millionaire, and her guest in a big show place on the Florida Keys, where

MR. MARLIN, the mad magnate, has hoarded more than a million dollars, the existence of which Newcombe learns inadvertently from his valet.

HOWARD LOCKE, son of a big business man, who takes Newcombe and Russell on his steam yacht. He falls in love with Polly.

His train of thought had been interrupted. Russell had suggested another—Locke. Captain Francis Newcombe had clenched suddenly, fiercely in the darkness. Locke? Some day, somewhere—but not now; not until the days and months, yes, even years, if necessary, were past and the time came when he had forgotten Captain Francis Newcombe, and Scotland Yard had forgotten—he would meet Locke again.

When that time came there would be no ammunition wasted as there had been in that damned thick that night. Locke! The fool thought that that he had been completely master of the situation and of Captain Francis Newcombe—even to the extent of obliterating Captain Francis Newcombe. Well, perhaps he had. It was quite true that the clubs of London, and, yes, for instance, the charming old Earl of Cleveland, would know Captain Francis Newcombe. But Locke, that shadowy figure still lived, and Shadow Varne with half a million dollars, even in a new environment, wherever it might be, did not present so great a problem as a new plot. Ha, ha! Locke! Locke would wait—that was a pleasure the future held in store. What counted now, he saw, was the money actually in his possession—that, and the assurance that the trail was smothered and lost behind him. Well, the former was only a matter of say, an hour or so at the most now; and the latter left nothing to be desired, did it?

"It ain't as though we didn't know there was reefs—Jimmie was stammering his words—only scolded flared with our light draft we would get any more of a chance, anyhow, and it wouldn't do us any harm. But she's rotten, that's what she is—plain rotten and nutty! And we must have hit a damn ledge of rock. Gave us a foot of water in his now."

"Yes," said Captain Francis Newcombe, calmly. "Well, don't blame her about it. We'll get on—she'll get away again. There's half a dozen skulls and things of that sort stowed away in the boathouse that you never saw now. One of them will never be missed, and we can at least get far enough away from the island by day-break not to be seen, and eventually we'll make the other side, even if it is a bit of a row."

"Row?" ejaculated Russell. "Yes," said Captain Francis Newcombe, curtly. "Well, not—since we have to. We can't steal a motorboat whose loss would be discovered, can we?"

"My Gawd!" said Russell. "The water was sloshing around Captain Francis Newcombe's feet; the boat had already begun perceptibly to lurch in its movement. He cast an appraising eye toward the land. It was almost impossible to judge the distance. Russell had said half a mile a few minutes ago. Call it a quarter of a mile now. But Russell was quite right in one respect: it was certain now that the boat would scuttle before the shore was reached."

"How far can you swim, Russell?" he demanded, abruptly. "It ain't that," choked Russell. "I can swim all right; it's—"

"It was just a matter of whether your body would be washed up on the shore, which would be equally as bad as though the boat stranded there for the edification of our friend Locke," droned Captain Francis Newcombe. "But, since you can swim that far, and since the boat's got to sink, let her sink here in deep water, where she won't be anybody aware of at night wondering about her—or us. Stop the engine again!"

"But the luggage," said Russell. "It will sink out of sight quite" readily, but run a rope through the handles and haul the stuff to the boat so it won't drift ashore—yes, an anything else that's loose!" said Captain Francis Newcombe, tersely. "Can't swim a quarter of a mile with portmanteaus! Stop the engine!"

"Strike me pink!" said Russell, faintly, as he obeyed and again stumbled forward to the luggage. Captain Francis Newcombe sat down and began to unlatch his boots. The water was nearly level with the bottom of the seat.

"It's all right," said Russell, after a moment. "Take your boots off, then, and sling them around your neck," ordered Captain Francis Newcombe. "Yes," said Russell. Captain Francis Newcombe stood up and divested himself of a light raincoat. He had been wearing, from the skirt of the garment he ripped off a generous portion, and, taking out his revolver and flashlight, wrapped them around with the waterproof cloth. The coat itself he thrust into an already water-filled locker under the seat, where it could not float away.

"Ready, Russell?" he inquired. "Yes," said Russell. "Come on, then," said Captain Francis Newcombe. The gunwale was awash as he struck out. A dozen strokes away, as he looked back, the boat had disappeared. He cursed suddenly under his breath, then laughed derisively. It would take more than that to beat Shadow Varne. Russell swam steadily at his side.

Presently they stepped out on the shore. Captain Francis Newcombe stared up and down the beach, as he seated himself on the sand and began to pull on his boots.

"We're a bit off our bearings, Russell," he said. "I couldn't see any sign of the boathouse even when I was swimming. And I can't see it now. Which way do you think it is?"

TODAY'S RECIPES

Asparagus Salad with Tartare.

Mousseline Sauce—Tartare.

Parasitic tips on nests of crisp heart lettuce. Put a spoonful of tartare mousseline sauce above the asparagus in each nest, and serve immediately.

Tartare Mousseline Sauce—To one cup of mayonnaise dressing add two tablespoons each of finely chopped carrots, olives, mushrooms, one-half cup pepper, a little salt and one-half cup cream beaten until stiff.

Creamed Salmon in Potato Cases—One tablespoon butter, one heaping tablespoon flour, one-half teaspoon salt, pepper, one cup milk. Mix the butter and flour, mix smooth, gradually add milk, salt, and pepper, and thicken sauce. Place salmon, one cup, and add to sauce. Pour into cases made of mashed potatoes and brown in oven.

CAKE MAKING

It is well to make layer cakes not overly rich as the filling usually adds to the richness of the cake.

In making a cake, if you have not enough milk use water. Increase the amount of shortening slightly in this case.

For economy's sake use half butter and half suet fat in cake making. It is desired. The difference in taste will not be noticed.

STEWINGS

Ghee will not dry if a piece of candle is used instead of a cork in your ghee bottle.

Warm water and a mild soap or a good soap-flake solution. Do not rub, just squeeze between the hands.

Rinse well in water of the same temperature. Squeeze as dry as possible and hang on a dress hanger to dry.

When nearly dry brush hard against the nap with a stiff bristled brush.

Allow to dry in a warm place, brush again. This raises the nap and makes it look like new.
